

MEET THE FENDER DR BASS. AGAIN.

Steve Bailey is one of the world's most respected bass players. He's recorded and toured with John Anderson (Yes), Larry Carlton, Dizzy Gillespie, and Kitaro—to name a few. He's been an integral part of BIT for years. And from jazz to heavy metal, his instrument of choice was the Heartfield DR Bass.

Now, Steve is reaping critical acclaim for his album with Flecktones bassist Victor Wooten, and is recording his eagerly awaited U.S. solo release.

Recently, the DR bass underwent a name change, from Heartfield to Fender. Same great bass—different name.

So we'd like you to meet two great musical phenomena. Steve Bailey and the Fender DR Bass.

Again.
